I do not agree with the DOJ settlement pact. It seems more like giving a thief the keys to the city. The only way competition can be re-introduced to the market is for stricter actions. The rouge states who side against the settlement have my vote at this time and are pushing the right buttons to boot. Microsoft will take advantage of any legal documents they have to in order to continue on the path they have walked for a very long time. The only true punishment is one that can not be undone. These people systematically eliminated competition and anything they didn't agree with. They have done this for years, and the punishment should match the crime. If you are really fighting for us, stop playing around and take them to the mat. After all if you are in this for the commerce world then they are crushing the commerce world. If you are in this for the people then they are abusing and swindling the common man. Either way, M$ wins and every one else loses.
